Clockaudio Sets Its Sights on Infocomm 2019 and Orlando, Florida

February 18, 2019 – Waterlooville, Hampshire, United Kingdom - Clockaudio Ltd., the global leader in pro-av microphone technologies based in the UK and with offices in North America and Asia, will be returning to Orlando for Infocomm 2019.

The show will be held at the Orlando County Convention Center, June 12 – 14, 2019. The event, which brings together audio and video professionals from around the country and the world, provides an excellent platform for Clockaudio to showcase its latest technologies and to meet with its dedicated reps, dealers, distributors and clients.

The company's focus at the show will include specific technologies for huddle spaces as well as some very exciting product introductions that will revolutionize microphone design. The booth will be built out with several key demonstration areas to provide a hands-on experience for visitors.

Robert Moreau, Managing Director for Clockaudio North America says, "This year, in particular, we are excited to showcase some innovative, new products as well as the latest updates to some of our most popular solutions. We are constantly working behind the scenes to keep our microphone technologies on the cutting edge, all the while maintaining the integrity and sound quality we are known for."

Moreau adds, "This show is one of the best platforms for getting feedback directly from the consultants that specify our products to the integrators that install them. We look forward to seeing old colleagues and friends as well as welcoming a new generation of AV professionals."

Clockaudio professional microphones and equipment have a strong presence in a broad range of industries such as, broadcasting, parliaments, courts, council chambers, places of worship, airports, banks, leisure centers and are becoming the preferred choice for many key applications. At Infocomm, Clockaudio will be in Exhibit Hall West – Level Two – Booth 6381.
