The Evolution of the C012E-RF

The C012E-RF started out as a custom version of the very popular C004E-RF.

The demand for a tougher table microphone grew every day, as microphones were installed not only in boardrooms, but in high-traffic environments.

This “assault” version of the C004E-RF quickly became a favorite for its small size, robustness and its outstanding sound quality.

It wasn't long until another request for a custom modification of the C012E-RF was suggested, as the application required that the through table shaft be only 1" long because of structural restrictions.

So, in true Clockaudio fashion, we complied to design the Custom C012-Short+CPPW01-RF, with a through table shaft of only 1".

Since the creation of the short version, Clockaudio has customized the C012 and its counterparts, in three different lengths and even a surface mount model for a specific application.

Clockaudio's ability to offer custom microphones in smaller quantities makes them “Clearly Different”.
